INDONESIA FORUM: AN OVERVIEW

The University of Melbourne pioneered Indonesian studies in the mid-1950s. Over the decades Indonesian studies at the university have seen a growth in student numbers, staffing and the diversity of Indonesia-related subjects offered to students. Research and teaching relating to Indonesia is conducted across several Departments, Faculties and Centres, including Architecture, Arts, Building and Planning, Economics and Commerce, Law and Medicine.

The Indonesia Forum was formed in 1991 as the Indonesia Interest Group. It changed its name in 1996, to standardise with other country forums throughout the university. The Indonesia Forum is an informal and open network of academics and administrative staff of the University who share a common interest and professional involvement in Indonesia. Members keep in touch by email and hold regular meetings, seminars and discussions. For the past twenty years the Indonesia Forum has hosted major functions that have brought together the wider Melbourne Indonesian and Indonesia-interested community on campus.

The Indonesia Forum also plays a policy advisory role on Indonesia-related issues within the University and works closely with the Asia Institute and Asialink, whose missions are related but more broadly oriented towards Asia as a whole. The Forum also maintains close links with the Indonesian Postgraduate Students Association, international students from Indonesia and domestic students studying in Indonesia-related areas. Since 1999 the Indonesia Forum has convened six-monthly postgraduate roundtables for students studying in Indonesia-related fields.

The Indonesia Forum maintains an email bulletin, moderated by Associate Professor Charles A Coppel, to keep members up to date with Indonesia-related events on campus and elsewhere, including in Indonesia. Its website <www.indonesiaforum.org.au> provides Indonesia-related information for staff, students, prospective students and colleagues from other institutions. From 2014 the Forum began a Twitter account <@indoforummelb> and a Facebook page <<https://www.facebook.com/indonesiaforummelbourne>>.

CONVENOR'S REPORT 2013

2013 saw continued growth in research and engagement with Indonesia and Indonesian Studies across the University. Some highlights were the launch of the Centre for Indonesian Law, Islam and Society (CILIS) headed by Professor Tim Lindsey in the Asian Law Centre: the launch of the Asian History Hub in the School of Historical and Philosophical Studies (SHAPS) and the commencement of Associate Professor Harry Minas and Dr Ritsuko's project to improve the treatment of mentally ill persons in Indonesia in the Centre for International Mental Health funded by an AUSAID Public Sector Linkages Program. In recognition of the strength of our Indonesia expertise The University of Melbourne was one of four universities included in the federally funded Australia Indonesia Centre, announced in November 2013. The centre aims to assist in providing solutions to Australia and Indonesia's joint challenges through extensive research collaborations. The University of Melbourne further supported Indonesian studies by announcing a new Melbourne Asia Visting Fellows Scheme that will allow staff to sponsor leading Indonesian researchers to visit the university in coming years. Consistent with the university's Asia strategy the Faculty of Arts also approved an Indonesia Initiative developed by Dr Katharine McGregor (SHAPS), Dr Edwin Jurriëns (Asia Institute) and Professor Thomas Reuter (Asia Institute) with input from Professor John Murphy (School of Social and Political Sciences). The initiative will allow three nominated Indonesian scholars from Arts Faculties of Indonesian universities to visit the Faculty each year for the next three years in order to build lasting research and teaching collaborations.

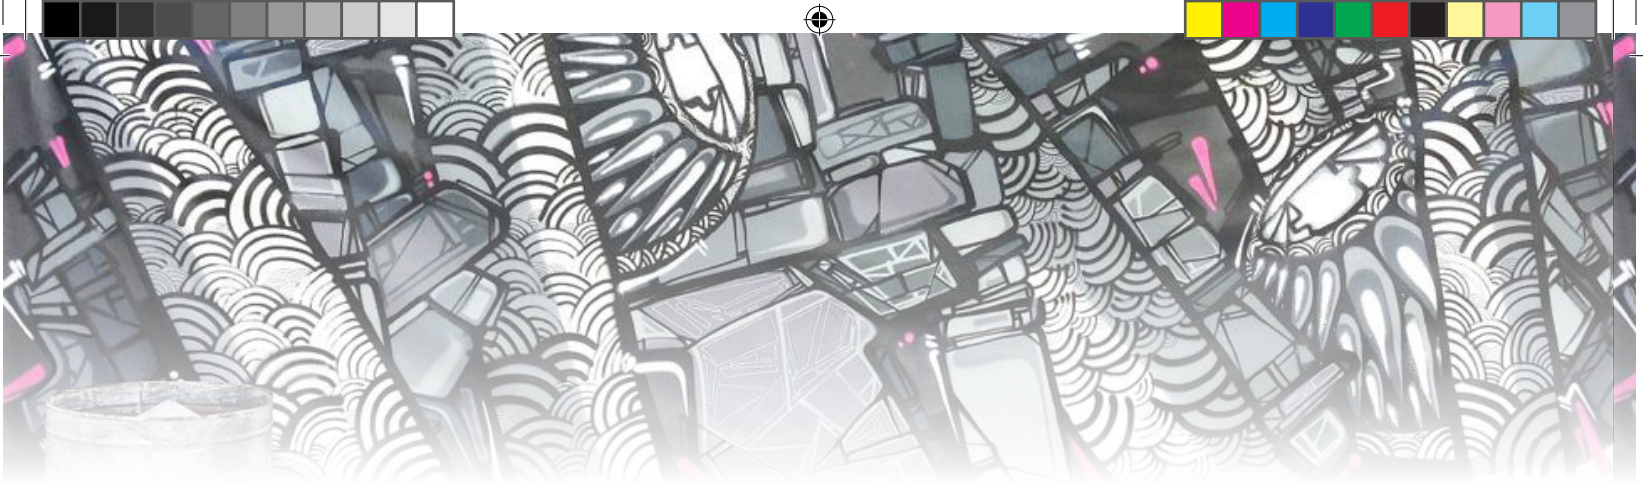

The Forum held three major main events in 2013. The first held on August 4 was a panel discussion co-sponsored by the Melbourne International Film Festival entitled 'Caught in the Act: Indonesia and *The Act of Killing'. The discussion centred around the Oscar nominated documentary film 'The Act of Killing' which focuses on the re-enactments of the 1965 killings by executioners from Medan, Indonesia. The panel discussion at the Wheeler Centre included one of the film's directors Joshua Oppenheimer, one of our PhD students, Jess Melvin (SHAPS), a Melbourne University tutor and journalist, Tito Ambyo and the Australian filmmaker, Tom Zubrycki. Fifty people attended the panel discussion.

The second event, on 30 August, 'After The Act of Killing: Historical Justice and the 1965-66 Mass Killings in Indonesia', was a multisite conference sponsored by the Indonesia Forum, SHAPS and the Herb Feith Foundation. The conference included papers from University of Melbourne staff Dr Katharine McGregor and PhD candidate Jess Melvin in addition to other Australian based experts on the 1965-66 killings in Indonesia including University of Melbourne PhD graduate, Dr Vanessa Hearman (Sydney University) and former staff member Associate Professor Ariel Heryanto (ANU). The conference was hosted at the University of Melbourne and STF Driyarkara, Jakarta. Sixty people attended the Melbourne conference.

The third event, on 3 October, was a panel discussion entitled 'Reimagining Urban Culture and Space in Indonesia', with the Melbourne School of Design, Faculty of Architecture, University of Melbourne. Panellists included Mr Revianto Budi Santosa (Lecturer at Universitas Islam Indonesia), Dr Seno Gumira Ajidarma, (Author and Lecturer in Faculty of Film and Television, Jakarta Institute of Art [IKJ], 2013 Mangold Fellow), Mr Yori Antar (Principal Architect, Han Awal & Partners, Honorary member of the Indonesian Institute of Architects) and Dr Amanda Achmadi (Lecturer in Asian Architecture and Urbanism, The University of Melbourne). Seventy people attended the event.

The Forum held two Postgraduate Roundtables in 2013 allowing students across Melbourne and beyond working on Indonesia related topics to present their research. The Roundtables are proving increasingly popular. The 28th Roundtable was held on 6 May, with eight students presenting. The 29th Roundtable was held on 14 September, with 15 students presenting. About thirty people attended each roundtable. There were presentations on a wide variety in topics across different disciplines including medicine, science, engineering, technology, history, gender studies and development. Issues discussed at the 2013 seminars ranged from rubbish collectors in Surabaya, transgender and development in Indonesia, psychology curriculums for doctors and Indonesian teacher education. Thanks to the staff and students who gave up their Saturdays to attend these roundtables. Over 2013 the number of postgraduate students researching topics related to Indonesia continued at a consistent level with seven PhD completions. (See list of current thesis topics in Appendix 3 of this report.)

There were many other events on campus, which had Indonesian speakers or an Indonesia focus. The Faculty of Arts hosted celebrated author Dr Seno Gumira Ajidarma as the Walter Mangold Fellow. Meidyrama Suryodiningrat the Editor-in-Chief of The Jakarta Post delivered a lecture entitled 'Indonesian Politics 2013 through Media Eyes' for an Asialink Boardroom Briefing. CILIS at the Melbourne Law School hosted the 9th Islamic Studies Postgraduate Conference.

Publications by Indonesia Forum staff members have appeared in a wide variety of outlets in 2013, ranging from international journals to local newspapers and have covered topics as varied as reproductive rights, human rights and labour, new media, law reform, history and memory, the 1965 violence, people smuggling, religious diversity and Australian-Indonesian identity negotiations. Two forum members, Professor Thomas Reuter and Dr Erminia Colucci (Centre for International Mental Health) also produced and released films on Indonesia in 2013.

In 2013, Dr Antje Missbach a McKenzie Postdoctoral Fellow in the Asian Law Centre received an ARC DECRA Fellowship for the project 'Political, Economic and Legal Aspects of People Smuggling from Indonesia to Australia' which she has taken up at Monash University. Dr Katharine McGregor received an ARC Future Fellowship for 2014-2017 on the project 'Confronting Historical Injustice in Indonesia: Memory and Transnational Human Rights Activism'. Professor Abdullah Saeed (Asia Institute) received an ARC Discovery Grant for a project entitled 'Reception of Historical and Critical Approaches to the Qur'an in Muslim Educational Institutions' featuring Indonesia as a case study. Across the university a large number of Indonesianists hold ARC Grants won in earlier rounds. ARC Future Fellow Linda Rae Bennett (Nossal Institute) won a further competitive ESHIRE Insight Grant from Canada as part of a team on a project entitled 'Southeast Asian Women, Family, and Migration in the Global Era', in which she will focus on Indonesian migrant women who have settled in Australia. Dr Edwin Jurriëns and Associate Professor Robyn Sloggett (SHAPS) were successful in 2013 round of The Australia Awards Fellowships which will enable up to ten visiting fellows from Indonesia and Timor-Leste to visit Melbourne for an intensive series of workshops on the theme of 'Reconciliation and Cultural Recovery' in 2014.

The University's Indonesian language enrolments have remained stable in 2013 with a student population that combines both Arts students - many continuing their language study from school - with those from faculties outside of Arts who choose to study Indonesian as part of their breadth requirements under the Melbourne Model. The Language Curriculum Reform process that the Indonesian language program has been conducting together with all other modern languages taught in the Faculty of Arts continues. The second round of new advanced level subjects were introduced in 2013. Enrolments in gamelan classes continued at a healthy number.

The Indonesia Forum would not have been able to engage in its activities without the help of many other organisations and supporters at the University of Melbourne. The Forum is very grateful to the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Engagement), Professor Susan Elliott, whose office has provided funding to the Forum. The Forum is also grateful for the guidance and support of Professor Simon Evans, Pro Vice Chancellor International and Dr Megan Power from the International Relations Office. The Asia Institute has provided venues for various functions of the Forum.

As the 2013 Convenor, from half way through the year, I am grateful to Dr Michael Ewing who I took over from mid-year for his on-going support and to Dr Edwin Jurriëns, the Deputy Convenor of the forum for 2013, both of whom have been a delight to work with. I would also like to thank Dr Helen Pausacker, Jess Melvin and Dr Amanda Achmadi for the invaluable work they have put into organising Indonesia Forum events and for their advice and guidance. Associate Professor Charles Coppel has continued to moderate the Indonesia Forum's email listing, which is a vital means of communication both between Indonesia Forum members and with the wider community. I also wish to thank our PhD students Morgan Harrington and Hani Yulindrasari who organised the 2013 Postgraduate Roundtables and Jess Melvin and Tessa Shaw who helped with the compilation and production of this report.

STAFF WITH INDONESIA INTERESTS

Dr Aline Scott-Maxwell

Ms Michelle Hall

Ms Mary Ann Gibson

Mr Richard Serle

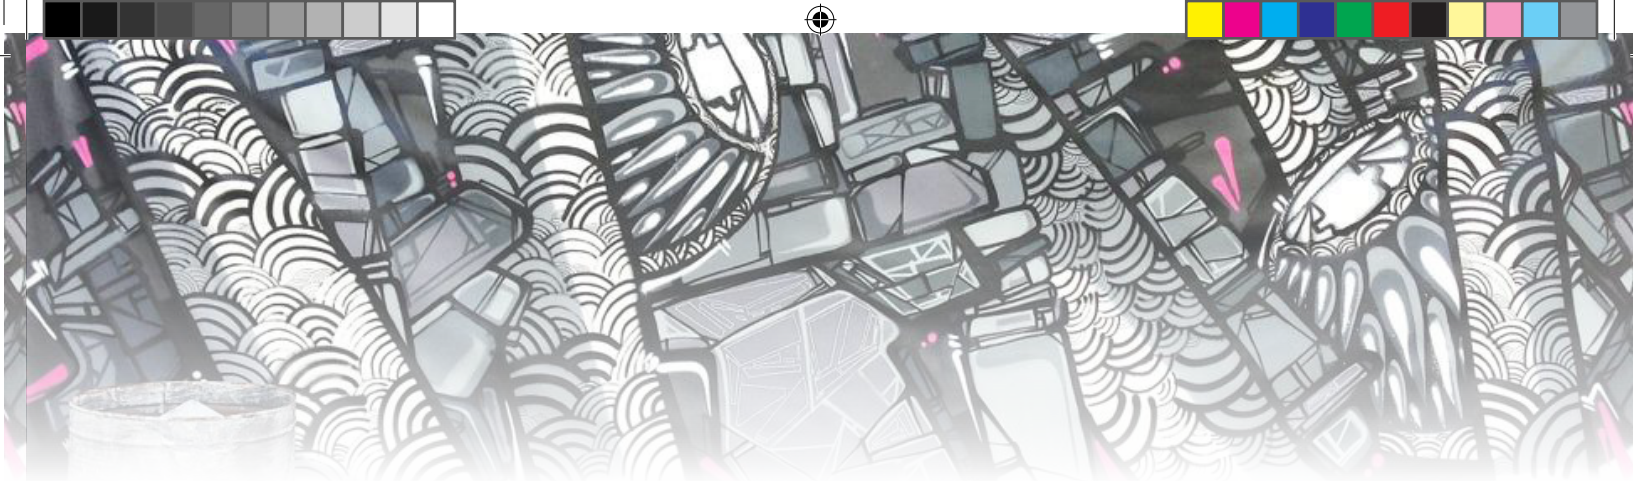

Aline Scott-Maxwell is the University's Indonesian Studies Library Consultant and is based in the Asia Institute one day per fortnight. Her appointment at the University of Melbourne is part of a co-operative arrangement with Monash University Library, where she is Senior Asian Studies Librarian. This shared position is made possible by the Melbourne-Monash protocol and the Asian Libraries in Melbourne consortium, which promotes resource sharing between University of Melbourne and Monash University libraries and reciprocal access to their Asian collections. Aline Scott-Maxwell provides reference support to Asia Institute and Indonesia Forum staff and postgraduates, including research consultancies. She also coordinates collection development.

Additional library support for Indonesian studies in 2013 was provided by Michelle Hall (East Asia collection) and staff in the Collection Development division, including Mary Ann Gibson and Richard Serle, the Pitt Officer, who assisted to build the Library's Indonesian collection in the area of acquisitions.

In 2013, the Library continued to develop its collections of Indonesia-related monographs and other materials in the subject areas of Indonesian politics and government, religion, history, anthropology, language, literature, law, education, mass media, architecture and performance. These acquisitions included some DVDs of films and documentaries. The Pitt Bequest (which supports the work of the School of Historical and Philosophical Studies) funded the purchase of 226 Indonesian-language books, largely through Indonesian supplier Patamga Dhanam Jaya (formerly Bhratara), and 10 books on Indonesian subjects in English. A small number of other titles were purchased from the Library's allocation to the Asia Institute and the Arts approval plan.

There are now over 14,000 Indonesia-related items in the collections, including more than 6,300 Indonesian-language items. There are over 1,600 Indonesia-related electronic resources on the Library catalogue, mainly English-language. These include e-books, reports, facsimiles of early works and journals.

Professor Trevor Duke (Centre for International Child Health, Department of Paediatrics)

The University of Melbourne is working with the Department of Paediatrics at Gadjah Mada University (UGM) in Yogyakarta on a neonatal rotavirus vaccine trial, which is being conducted in Yogyakarta and surrounding districts. This has involved training of over 500 staff at UGM and in the community in GCP requirements, recognition and management of common childhood illness and advanced paediatric life support for doctors at primary health centres. In addition, studies have been developed that will lead to research higher degrees including a study on maternal antibodies and immune response to rotavirus vaccines (Vicka Oktaria, PhD candidate). The program is also working closely with the Indonesian government vaccine manufacturer, BioFarma with the aim to manufacture the RV3 rotavirus vaccine at low cost for babies in Indonesia and globally.

The Centre for International Child Health is working with the Department of Paediatrics at UGM on several research projects that will lead to higher research degrees for their staff. These include a study of community-based prevention of childhood tuberculosis (Rina Triasi, PhD candidate) and rational antibiotic prescribing and the prevention of hospital acquired infections in

Associate Professor Harry Minas (Director, Centre for International Mental Health)

Dr Ritsuko Kakuma (Senior Research Fellow, Centre for International Mental Health)

Dr Erminia Colucci (Research Fellow, Centre for International Mental Health)

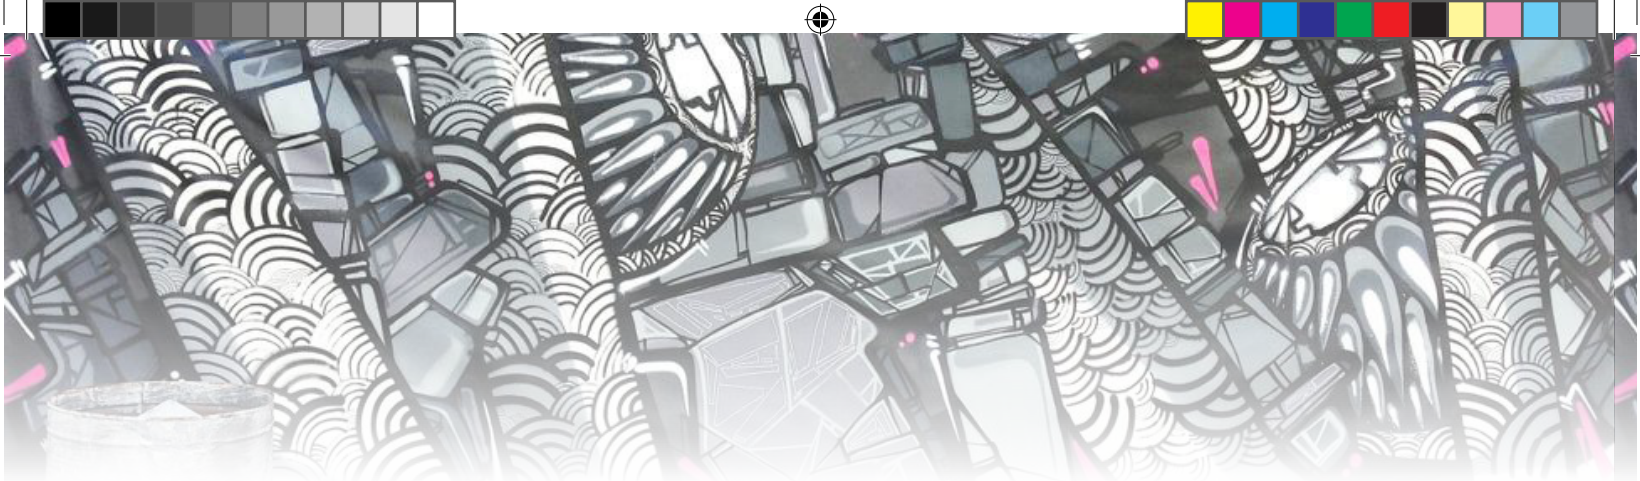

PROJECTS/ ACHIEVEMENTS

The Centre for International Mental Health (CIMH) has a strong history of collaborative partnerships with leaders in mental health systems development and services in Indonesia, particularly with University of Indonesia, Gadjah Mada University, and with the Ministry of Health and Ministry of Social Affairs. Several of the key leaders for mental health systems and policy development in Indonesia are past graduates of the Centre's International Mental Health Leadership Program (IMHLP).

Since 2005, CIMH has been involved in supporting the development of mental health systems at provincial and national levels, with capacity building, policy development and program implementation activities.

These have included:

1. Developing a Monitoring and Evaluation Strategy for the Indonesia Free from Pusang Program. A/Prof Harry Minas and Dr Ritsuko Kukuma. This 12-month project, supported by an AusAID Public Sector Linkages Program grant, is linked to the national Indonesia Free from Pusang (Indonesia Bebas Pusang) initiative. The design of the national program has been refined, a core group has received two weeks intensive training in program monitoring and evaluation at the University of Melbourne, and a monitoring and evaluation strategy has been developed.

2. A film by Dr Erminia Colucci, in collaboration with A/Prof Harry Minas, Dr Hervita Diatri and other Indonesian partners 'Free From Pusang: The fight for human rights for Indonesia's mentally ill.

Synopsis: The practice of using shackles and chains (known in Indonesia as pasung) to physically restrain persons with mental illness to control their behaviour is widespread in Indonesia (as in many other developing countries) and almost universally ignored. To address these severe human rights violations, the Indonesian government has committed to the elimination of this practice across the country by 2015. This film-documentary, the first of its kind, highlights the activities carried out at several levels in the country (from the government to the Pasung survivors and their community) to eradicate this form of human rights abuse and give freedom and dignity to the mentally ill.

PROJECTS / ACHIEVEMENTS

Australia-Indonesia Partnership for Pro-Poor Policy, The Knowledge Sector Initiative

The overall goal of this program is to build the capacity of Indonesia to develop effective and socially accountable policies that meet the priority development needs. In its first phase, the program will work towards an increase in the supply side of high quality research; a model for evidence-informed policy making applied by key policy makers; and an avenue for diverse stakeholders to debate policies.

The Program's four components are:

1. The 'Supply' Component, whereby selected organisations generate and communicate high-quality evidence to relevant policy makers;
2. The 'Demand' Component, whereby selected government policy makers effectively demand and utilise high-quality evidence to inform social development policy;
3. The 'Intermediary' Component whereby selected organisations effectively translate the findings from research into policy options and policy options feed back into research, and;
4. The 'Enabling Environment' whereby important systematic barriers to an effective knowledge sector are identified and mitigated.

Working with the core Indonesian supply side research organisations in the health sector, the Nossal Institute is supporting analysis and planning of health research capabilities, aligning research capabilities with policy needs, and identifying the impact of research on health policy by helping to build research capacity. The institute is also assessing demand side research barriers and developing and assisting in demand side health policy development; providing Short Term Advisors to support capacity building of health sector CSOs to use networks and advocacy strategies to communicate with policy makers; as well as providing overall support to monitoring and evaluation activities including dissemination and publication of research and project finding with consortium partners and relevant Indonesian supply and demand side research organisations and partners.

Australia Indonesia Partnerships in Maternal and Neonatal Health (AIPMNH)

The Australia Indonesia Partnership in Maternal and Neonatal Health (AIPMNH) aims to improve maternal and neonatal health (MNH) in targeted districts within the Nusa Tenggara Timur Province. Working in partnership with Coffey International Development and Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ), the Nossal Institute provides technical oversight and technical support to this health systems focused program to progressively achieve MDG targets for maternal and child health. The Program has three components designed to improve service delivery and community engagement, provide health systems support and assist system reforms in performance and accountability. The Nossal Institute provides technical support to the following areas:

- Monitoring & Evaluation, including analysis of performance improvement, effectiveness of development assistance, and capacity building
- Clinical training and provision of specialist clinical services
- Management and leadership training for health service managers
- Performance management and incentives program.

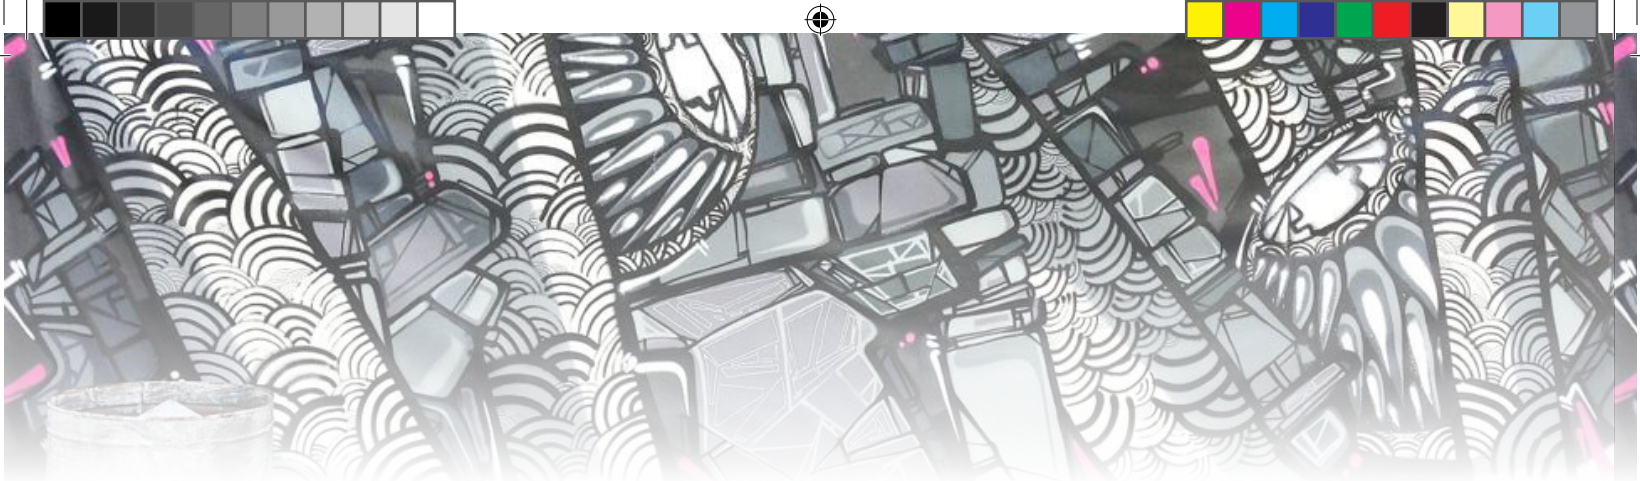

Australian Awards Fellowships: Strengthening Youth HIV Prevention in Indonesia (Tanah Papua): Building workforce capacity (26 September – 25 October 2013, total number of fellows: 8)

Broad Development Goal: To ensure young people in Indonesia (Tanah Papua - Papua and West Papua provinces), particularly adolescent girls, have access to appropriate and integrated youth friendly health services, including HIV prevention information and counselling.

AAF Goal: To increase the depth and breadth of the response to HIV prevention and positive youth development in Indonesia by building the capacity of local leaders (both Government and NGO) responsible for HIV prevention.

In Tanah Papua (Indonesia), HIV prevalence is almost fifteen times higher than the national average. UNAIDS estimates young people in this region are disproportionately represented with prevalence among 15-24 year olds estimated to be higher than 3%. Transmission is primarily through unprotected sex. The urgent need for an integrated and responsive approach to HIV prevention is largely unmet because human resource capacity to deliver is low.

Eight fellows acquired knowledge on youth health/development, evidence-based HIV prevention interventions and integration models. Building leadership and technical capacity to develop/refine provincial policy and program action plans is fundamental to accelerating the HIV response for young people and has the greatest potential to reverse the epidemic. This program built on the successful ALA Fellowships (Round 8, Round 11) to strengthen the coordination systems between the district and provincial sectoral institutions to ensure an integrated HIV response for young people.

Health Policy and Health Finance Knowledge Hub (completed June 2013)

The Indonesian Government has substantially increased investment in health over the last decade, mainly through demand-side financing of social health insurance. However, there remain considerable supply-side constraints, with a concentration of health facilities and workforce in the central islands of Java, Bali and Sumatra, and a scarcity in the more peripheral islands.

The Hub focuses on the contribution of the rapidly growing private sector and the parallel increasing commercialisation of the public sector and the subsequent poor distribution of resources and inequity in access. Improved government stewardship of this mixed commercialised health system has the potential to increase access to quality health care throughout Indonesia. Stewardship mechanisms include aligning and rationalising payments and incentives, and more engagement with the private sector and professional bodies through co-regulation.

Initial studies conducted in collaboration with our research partner, the Centre for Health Service Management at the Universitas Gadjah Mada (UGM), highlighted the important roles of not-for-profit (NFP) hospitals and specialist doctors in the private sector. Following communication of these findings, the Hub and UGM have been engaged in dialogue with the Ministry of Health, the NFP hospital associations and the medical professional associations on policy implications and options.

Provisions in the Hospital Law of 2009 paved the way for government support of NFP hospitals and subsequent policy engagement has explored the development of regulations required to implement these provisions.

The Hub and UGM have been instrumental in facilitating dialogue between the Ministry of Health and medical professional associations, creating opportunities for collaboration on the poor distribution of specialist doctors. Exposure to Australia's experience of collaboration between professional bodies and government on support for rural and remote health workforce has provided new policy options for Indonesia.

The Hub's work in Indonesia highlights the governance challenges of mixed public/private health systems in countries with a decentralised and fragmented government, and poorly regulated markets.

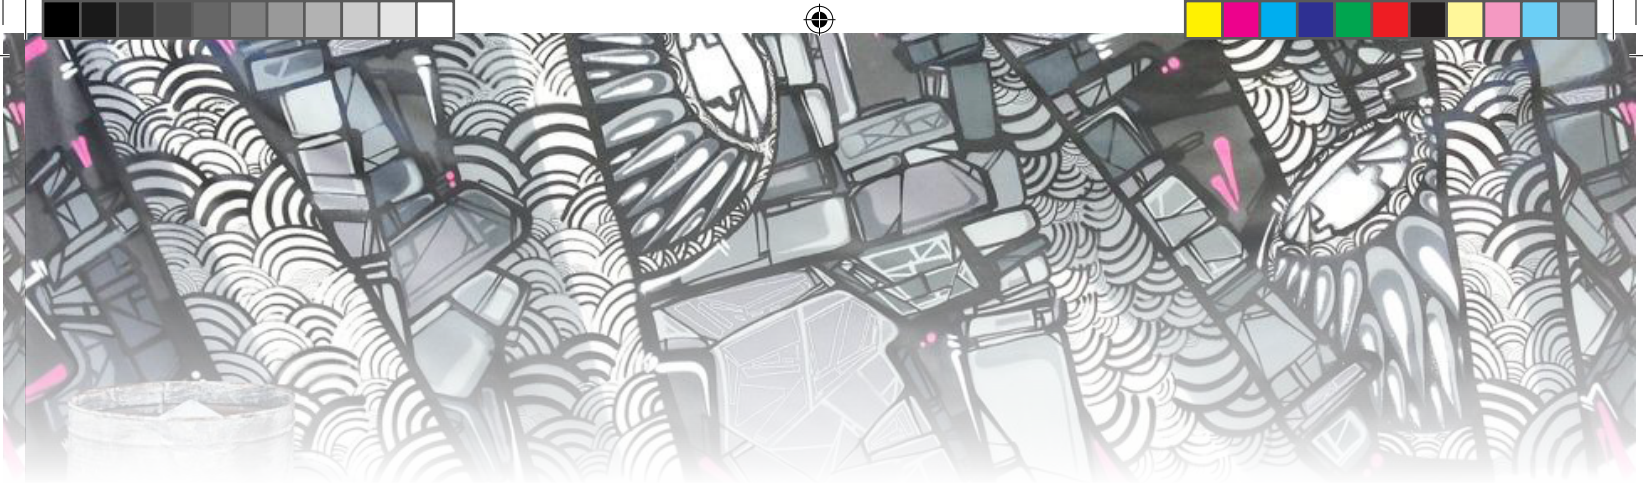

In 2013, outputs were targeted towards dissemination and communication of the results of Hub studies and analyses to policy makers, in particular AusAID, partner governments and development partners. This involved:

- Targeted engagement and communication by knowledge hubs with key stakeholders and potential users of knowledge products, if possible from early in the process, but particularly at the dissemination stage;
- Development and distribution of relevant and useful knowledge resources to stakeholders in forms appropriate to their needs; and
- Revisions to the monitoring and evaluation framework to ensure that it assists the description and measurement of the process and results of Hub dissemination, engagement and uptake. The revisions will also address the need for monitoring and evaluation at the individual Hub level, cross Hub level, and at the initiative-wide level, recognising the role of AusAID in the dissemination process.

Public Sector Linkage Program (PSLP) 'Putting the PKPR into Practice: Strengthening Systems for Effective Delivery of Youth Health and Development Services in Aceh'

This AusAID supported program began implementation in June 2011. The program recognises the need for improved provision and coordination of adolescent health services and education in Aceh, Indonesia. The program aims to ensure the inclusion of the Pelayanan Kesehatan Peduli Remaja, (PKPR) policy for youth friendly services, in both health and education planning and implementation.

The PKPR is a national program that was developed by the Indonesian Ministry of Health (MOH) with support from the United Nation Population Fund (UNFPA) in 2003. It is a program designed to deliver 'youth friendly' services through two key entry points:

health (youth friendly puskesmas [health clinics]) and education (life skills, including comprehensive sexuality education). The program received a no cost extension until December 2013.

Compromised fertility in contemporary Indonesia – ARC Future Fellowship project

This four year Future Fellowship project is the first in depth investigation of infertility in Indonesian society. It focuses on women's experiences of compromised fertility and its impact on their lives, examining the intersections of social suffering and gender discrimination for infertile women.

PROJECTS/ ACHIEVEMENTS

Nossal staff have been involved in the engagement of medical professional associations in the distribution of specialist doctors to support universal health coverage in Indonesia (B Allen, K Hort, A Meliala; Health Policy and Health Finance Knowledge Hub, Nossal Institute for Global Health). Disparities in the distribution of specialist doctors among the regions of Indonesia contribute to limiting access to referral services of rural and remote populations, and threaten achievement of the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) and Indonesia's introduction of universal health coverage.

In 2013, L Butt (PI1), L Mitchell (PI2), L R Bennett (CI1) and D Mc Kay (CI2), won a competitive $450,893 grant for their project 'Southeast Asian Women, Family, and Migration in the Global Era', ESHIRE Insight Grant – Canada. The focus of Dr Bennett's contribution to this project is on Indonesian migrant women who have settled in Australia.

MELBOURNE CONSERVATORIUM OF MUSIC

www.music.unimelb.edu.au

The Melbourne Conservatorium of Music maintains three sets of gamelan (Javanese, Sundanese and Cirebonese musical instruments/orchestras), representing most of the main gamelan traditions of Indonesia, as well as a set of wayang kulit puppets and a kecapi-suling ensemble. There is active study and performance of gamelan music and the gamelan collection is housed in the Melbourne Conservatorium of Music's Parkville annex in Berkeley Street.

Ms Ilona Wright (Lecturer [casual] and Director of Gamelan Ensemble)

TEACHING

In 2013 there was once again a large number of students enrolled in gamelan classes, with 38 students enrolled in first semester and 27 students in second semester. Many of these students are taking gamelan as a breadth subject. The students all participated in a combined concert with Melbourne Community Gamelan at the end of both semesters.

Ilona Wright taught 'Music in Modern Indonesia' and directed the gamelan ensemble.

PERFORMANCES

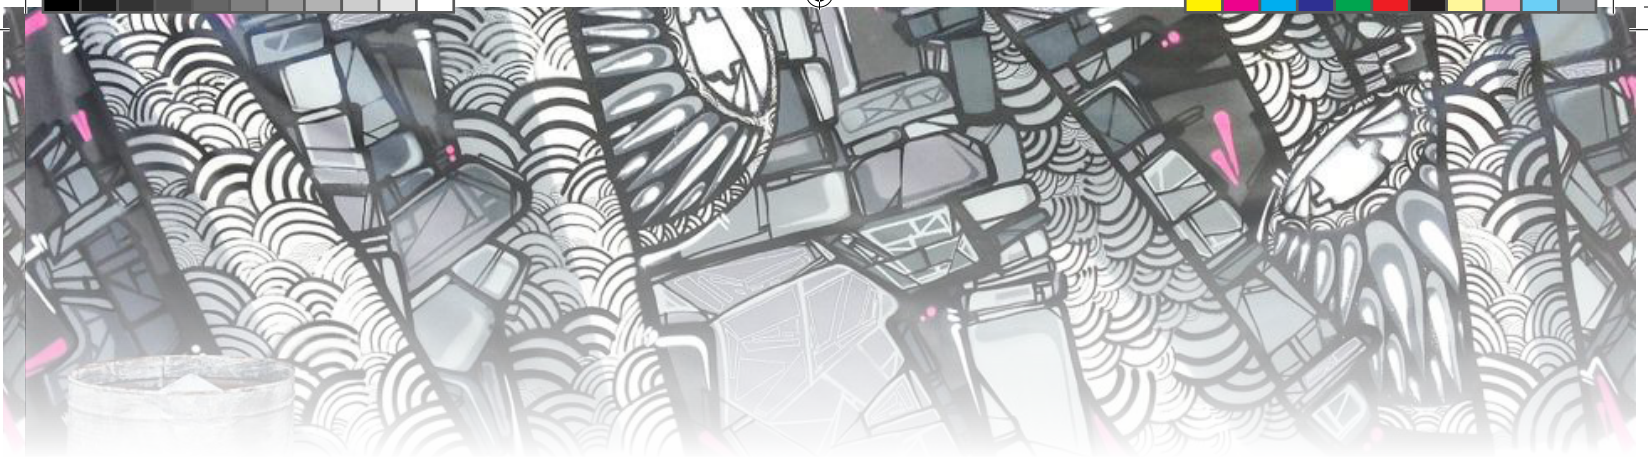

Melbourne Community Gamelan Inc. performs musical pieces from Solo (Central Java). The group is taught by Ki Poedijono, who was the musical director for all of the Melbourne Community Gamelan's 2013 performances. Marianne Lessels is the current President of the group. The group can be contacted by email: melgamelan@hotmail.com, through its website: www.melgamelan.com.au and facebook: www.facebook.com/melgamelan.

During 2013 Melbourne Community Gamelan performed three times:

- On Monday 3 June and Monday 28 October, Melbourne Community Gamelan coordinated end of semester concerts, 'The Final Gong'. These concerts featured Melbourne Community Gamelan and the University of Melbourne student groups. They were held in the Berkeley Street premises and about 80 to 100 people attended. Helen Pausacker performed a short wayang (shadow puppet) performance, accompanied by Melbourne Community Gamelan for the October concert. The June concert also featured Brandon Lee on koto and the October concert featured Robert McMullen and Friends playing Celtic music.
- On Friday 1 November, Melbourne Community Gamelan accompanied two short wayang kulit performances by Helen Pausacker of 'Srikandhi Maguru Manah' (Srikandhi Learns Archery) for primary school students, studying Indonesian language at Point Cook College.

Putra Panji Asmara Inc. performs musical pieces from Cirebon, a region on the north coast of West Java, with a focus on music to accompany topeng (masked dance). The group is lead by Michael Ewing from the University of Melbourne's Asia Institute, and can be contacted by email on: putrapanjiasmara@gmail.com. For more information see the website: <http://home.vicnet.net.au/~ppagamel>.

Putra Panji Asmara was on leave for most of second semester in 2013, but took part in one performance on Sunday 11 August, performing both topeng dance and kuda lumping (horse trance dance) as part of the opening of the exhibition, 'Masks and Miniatures' by the Museum of Indonesian Arts at Monash Gallery of Art.

PROJECTS / ACHIEVEMENTS

Violence prevention in schools in Papua Province

The Youth Research Centre, Melbourne Graduate School of Education have continued to work with UNICEF in Papua Province in collaboration with Provincial Government partners on a violence prevention education initiative. This work is funded by the UN Trust Fund to End Violence Against Women.

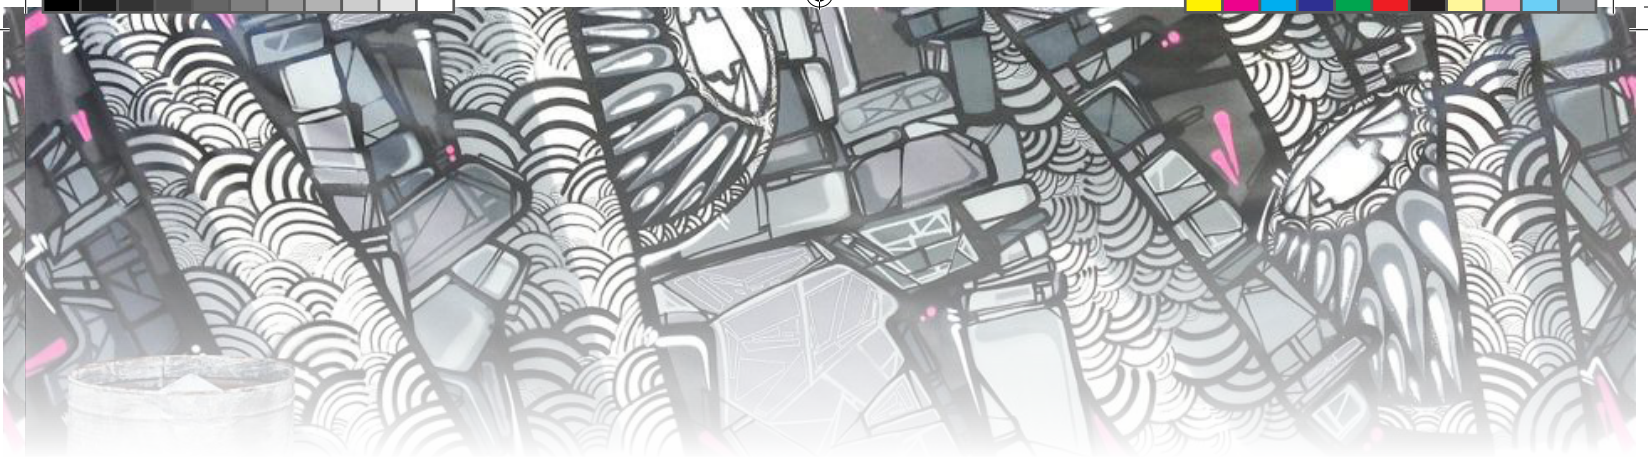

In 2013, the YRC worked with UNICEF to design and deliver additional training in positive discipline strategies to teachers, principals and District government staff in Jayawijaya, Jayapura and Keerom districts. The training aims to present a rationale for using positive discipline (rather than corporal punishment) and uses a range of participatory techniques so that teachers can practice strategies to use in their classrooms. This project has involved a collaborative effort from UNICEF, the YRC, Papua Office for Education, Papua Bureau of Women's Empowerment and the University of Cenderawasih.

In 2014, the YRC will continue to work with UNICEF and partners on this project, introducing additional classroom materials in social and emotional learning and explore how these materials can be integrated into the local curriculum.

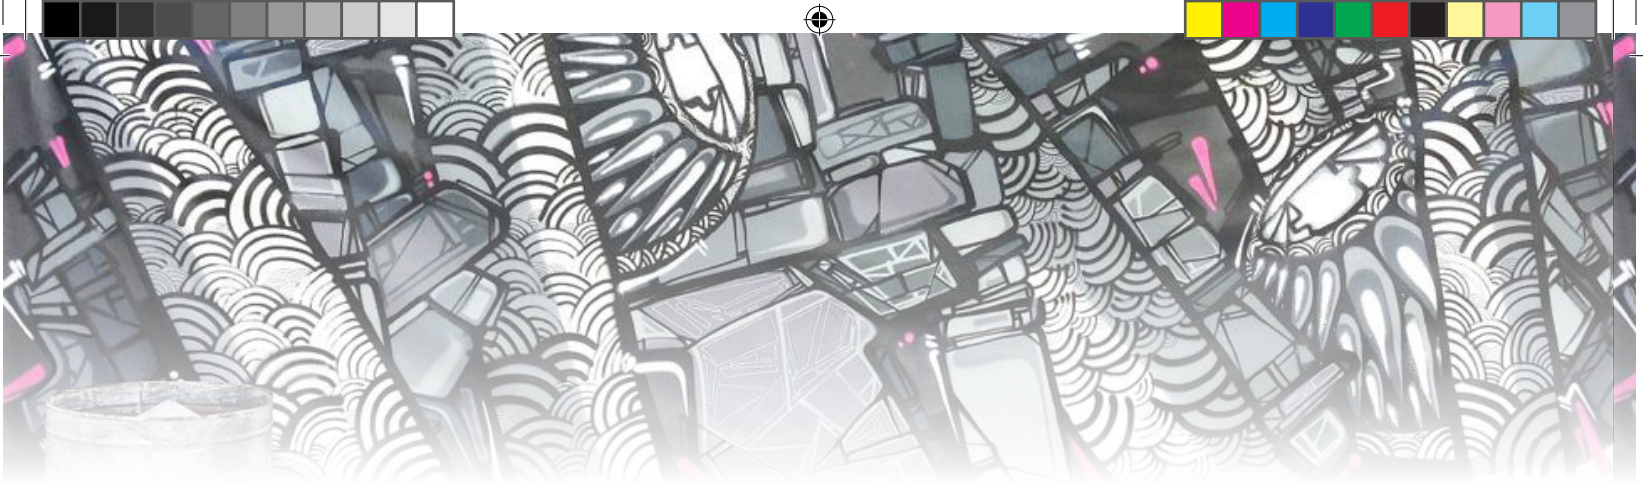

Design and delivery of short-courses in Adolescent Development and Participation

In 2013 the YRC worked with UNICEF to design and deliver a short course 'Understanding and Advancing Adolescent Health, Development and Participation'. The course presents up-to-date local data on adolescents, explores how data can be used to inform programs, presents the latest evidence-based interventions, advocates for meaningful participation of adolescents and shares promising practice from around Indonesia and the broader Asia Pacific region. A training of trainers for the course was delivered in November 2013, attended by a range of participants from Government, NGOs and UN Agencies working in Papua and West Papua.

A second course was commissioned by UNICEF Indonesia to be delivered at the national level in Jakarta in 2014.

In 2013 the Centre for Indonesian Law, Islam and Society (CILIS) was launched, replacing the Centre for Islamic Law and Society (CILS, formerly, Centre for the Study of Contemporary Islam). The launch of the new centre was to better reflect the work done by the centre. Through the Asian Law Centre (ALC) and CILIS, the Melbourne Law School has been one of the leaders in internationalisation at the University, with a particular emphasis on Indonesia. The Law School now enjoys close cooperative links with government, professional, academic and non-governmental institutions throughout Indonesia and has significant numbers of Indonesian students studying law-related aspects of Indonesian society in the University's Graduate and Research Higher Degree Programs. In 2013 both centres were active in Indonesia-related research and worked closely with the Asia Institute on a range of Indonesia-related projects.

CILIS Senior Associates Professor Greg Fealy (ANU), Professor Virginia Hooker (ANU), Professor MB Hooker (ANU), Professor Merle Ricklefs (ANU) and CILIS Associates Dr Nadirsyah Hosen (University of Wollongong) and Dr Arskal Salim (University of Western Sydney) attended as guest mentors.

Bibliographic Websites

Asian Law Online continued in 2013. It can be accessed at: <www.law.unimelb.edu.au/alc/bibliography>.

Offered to the public as a free service to assist students, scholars and practitioners of Asian legal systems, Asian Law Online is a collection of English language materials on Asian laws available throughout the world. It includes books, chapters in books, journal articles and theses on Indonesian law, and provides access to a large number of Indonesian law websites.

In 2013 CILIS continued to develop its new bibliographic database, 'Islamic Law Online', which can be accessed at: <<http://cils.law.unimelb.edu.au/ilo>>. Islamic Law Online is a collection of publications on Islamic law available throughout the world.

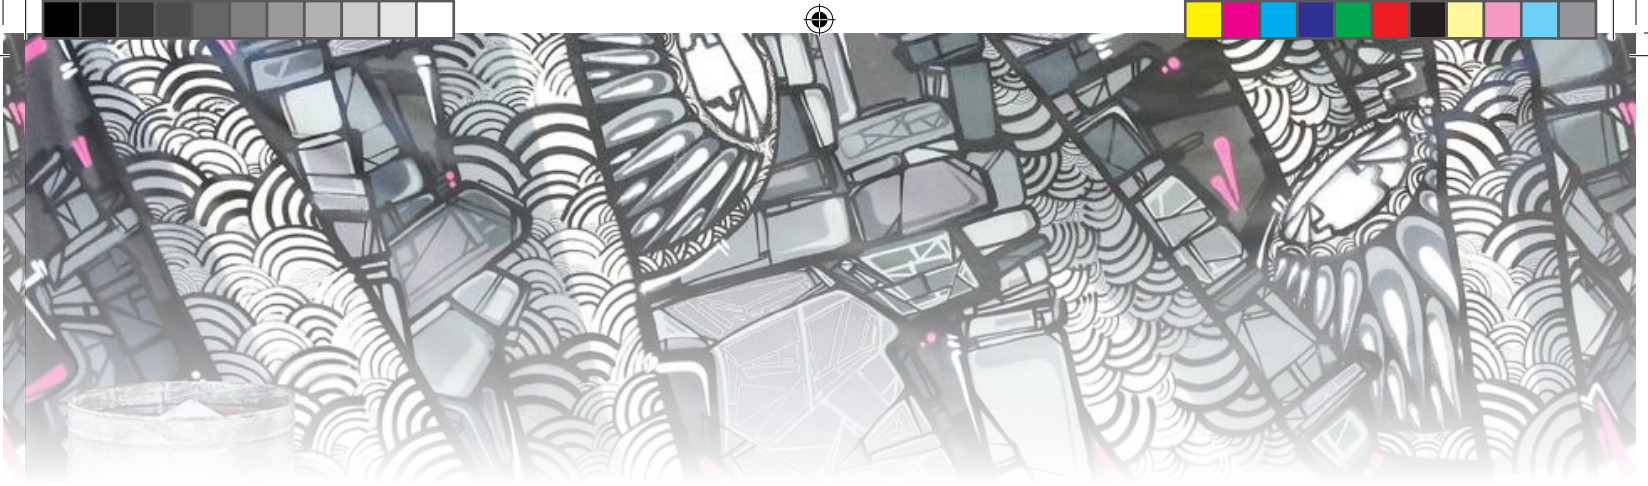

Australian Journal of Asian Law

With Professor Veronica Taylor of ANU, Professor Richard Cullen of the University of Hong Kong and Dr Melissa Crouch of the National University of Singapore, Amanda Whiting, Tim Lindsey and Helen Pausacker from the Asian Law Centre edited the international refereed journal, the Australian Journal of Asian Law, which covers Southeast Asia, including Indonesia.

CILIS Policy Papers

CILIS began producing a series of Policy Papers in 2013, including:

1. Trials of People Smugglers in Indonesia: 2007-2012 by Melissa Crouch and Antje Missbach
2. Indonesia and Australia in the Asian Century by Richard Woolcott AC

3. Is Indonesia as Corrupt as Most People Believe and Is It Getting Worse? by Howard Dick and Simon Butt.

The Asialink Arts 2012-13 Annual Report

This report was published in four languages, including Bahasa Indonesia.

PwC Melbourne Institute Asialink Index

This annual report is the only comprehensive, long-term measure of Australia's engagement with Asia. It assesses the level and rate of change across twenty-five economies, including Indonesia. The index examines our engagement across trade, investment, research and business, development, education, tourism, migration, and humanitarian assistance.

The Report reveals the importance of tourism and education services to the Australia-Indonesia economic relationship.

The 2013 Report and analysis of our engagement with Indonesia can be accessed at: <http://www.asialinkindex.com.au/2013/Indonesia.php>.

ASIALINK EDUCATION (Asia Education Foundation)

The Asia Education Foundation (AEF) is a joint activity of Asialink at the University of Melbourne and Education Services Australia Ltd. The AEF supports schools to implement Asia and Australia's engagement with Asia cross-curriculum priority of the Australian Curriculum.

Australia-Indonesia BRIDGE Project

The Australia-Indonesia BRIDGE (Building Relationships through Intercultural Dialogue and Growing Engagement) Project is an internationally recognised professional learning program that supports the establishment of Australia-Indonesia school partnerships. Since 2008, the project has established ninety-six school partnerships and directly involved 384 Australian and Indonesian teachers through a blended model of face-to-face and online interaction.

The project is an initiative of the Asia Education Foundation (AEF) and Australia-Indonesia Institute (AII), funded by Australian Aid.

Sixty-four Australian and Indonesian teachers from thirty-two schools attended professional learning programs facilitated by the AEF at the University of Melbourne in March and May 2013. The program focused on information and communication technologies (ICT), intercultural understanding, Australian education, history and contemporary society and school partnership building. The Indonesian teachers accompanied their Australian counterparts to their respective Australian states and territories for a two-week school and homestay program, further consolidating their professional learning experience.

Australian Aid and the Department of Education provided funding in September 2013 to support all new Australian BRIDGE teachers the opportunity to visit their Indonesian partner schools. This funding is secured until 2015.

AEF Study Programs – Indonesia 2013

In 2013 the AEF delivered three Study Programs. The Indonesia study programs are aimed at increasing Australian educators' knowledge and understanding of contemporary issues via school visits, cultural experiences and briefings from key organisations and experts in Indonesia.

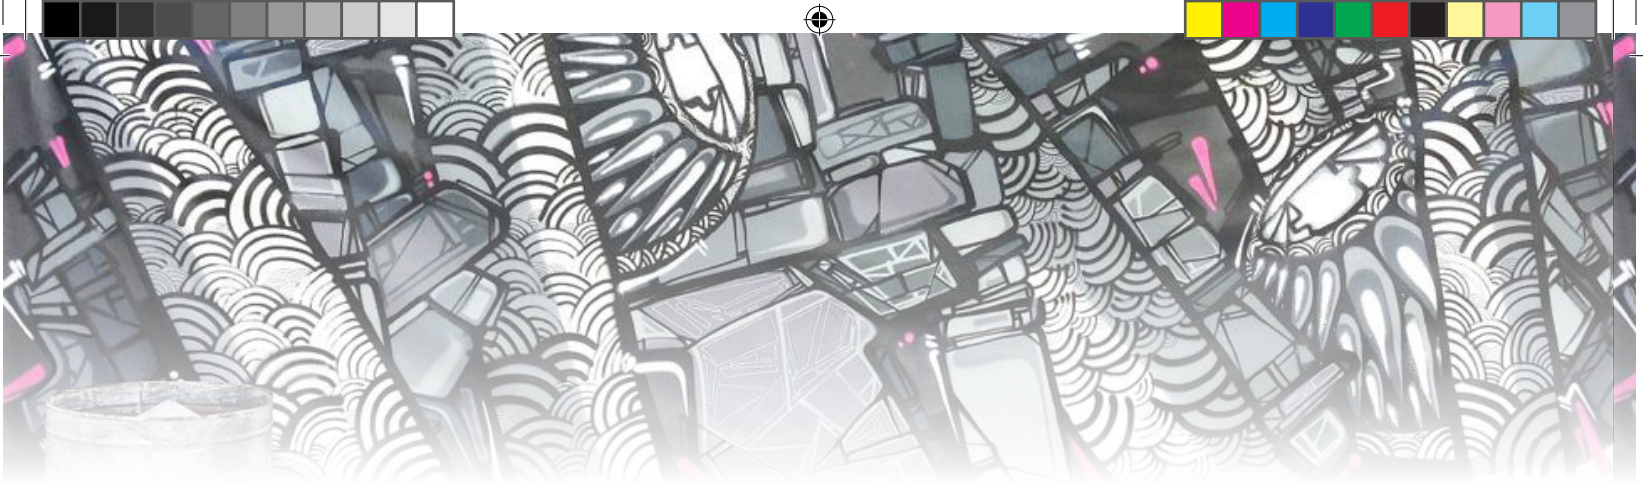

In January, seventeen educators from all over Australia participated in a program visiting Jakarta, Bandung and Yogyakarta. In June, nine educators joined a program to Jakarta, Yogyakarta and Surabaya. In September, fifteen participants' focused on visits to Sulawesi and Java.

The Indonesian Study Programs work closely with the BRIDGE project where partners from the Australian BRIDGE schools are able to access scholarship funding to join the Study Program before or after their Indonesian school visit/homestay.

ASIALINK BUSINESS

Asialink facilitates a range of forums and services for business, government, academia and the broader community that serve to stimulate debate, provide increased understanding and promote greater engagement with the Asian region. In 2013, this included:

- Indonesian Politics 2013 through Media Eyes, Asialink Boardroom Briefing with Meidyrama Suryodiningrat, Editor-in-Chief, The Jakarta Post. Held in Melbourne, 27 February.

- Indonesia Investment & Business Forum. Held in partnership with BKPM -Indonesia Investment Coordinating Board, Austrade, Australia Indonesia Business Council and Australian Institute of Company Directors. Melbourne, 15 November.

ASIALINK HEALTH (Asia Australia Mental Health)

Asia Australia Mental Health

Asia Australia Mental Health (AAMH) is a consortium of the University of Melbourne's Asialink and Department of Psychiatry, and St Vincent's Health. In partnership with health sector, government, academic and community peak bodies in Asia and Australia, AAMH aims to develop culturally appropriate and best practice mental health programs through promotion, research, training and service reform.

Deepening ties with Indonesia in mental health

In March 2013, AAMH and its partner Mind Australia - a leading community-managed psychosocial rehabilitation service, visited Jakarta for the official signing of a Letter of Intent with the Ministry of Social Affairs.

The Letter of Intent aims to support the Ministry's 'Community-based Social Rehabilitation Program Development Plan for People with Mental Disability'.

This project, titled Sembuh: An Indonesia-Australia collaboration in community mental health is supported by the Australia-Indonesia Institute of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade.

Ministry of Social Affairs – Recovery-oriented practice training

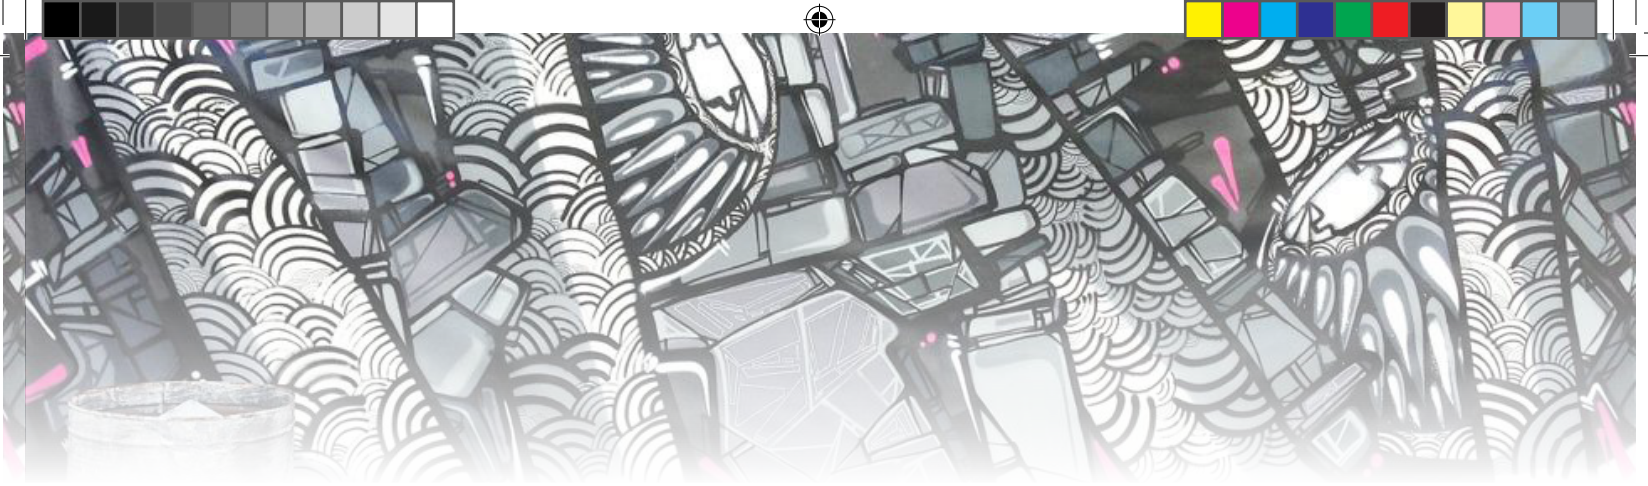

In September 2013, Asia Australia Mental Health (AAMH) and its Australian partners, Mind, were asked by the Ministry of Social Affairs, Indonesia to provide a two-day training seminar to key mental health workers in Jakarta, focusing on recovery-oriented practice. The training was funded through the Australia Indonesia Institute of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade.

ASIALINK ARTS

Asialink Arts develops opportunities for cultural exchange between Australia and Asia to improve the Asia capability of the cultural sector, based on the principles of partnership, collaboration and reciprocity.

Asialink Arts initiated the following Indonesia related activities in 2013:

- A research trip to Yogyakarta, Bandung and Jakarta in November 2013 in order to develop networks and organisational partnerships;
- Facilitation of Put Up a Signal, an artist exchange featuring Indonesian and Australian screen based art. The project was co-curated by Indonesian curator Agung Nugroho Widhi and Bus Projects, Melbourne. The outcome of the exchange screened on the 'Big Screen', Federation Square throughout November, 2013;
- Invited Yogyakarta based Indonesian curator Agung Nugroho to Melbourne for a fortnight in November 2013;
- Hosted a forum addressing what digital platforms can offer in terms of intercultural communication and exchange in November 2013. Speakers included Indonesian curator Agung Nugroho Widhi and Melbourne University academic Edwin Jurriëns. Video works by Indonesian artist Muhammad Akbar were exhibited.

2013 Asialink Arts Residencies in Indonesia

Arts Manager Kieren Sanderson and Performing Artist Tony Yap were the recipients of Asialink Arts Residencies to Indonesia in 2013.

Kieren Sanderson (NT)

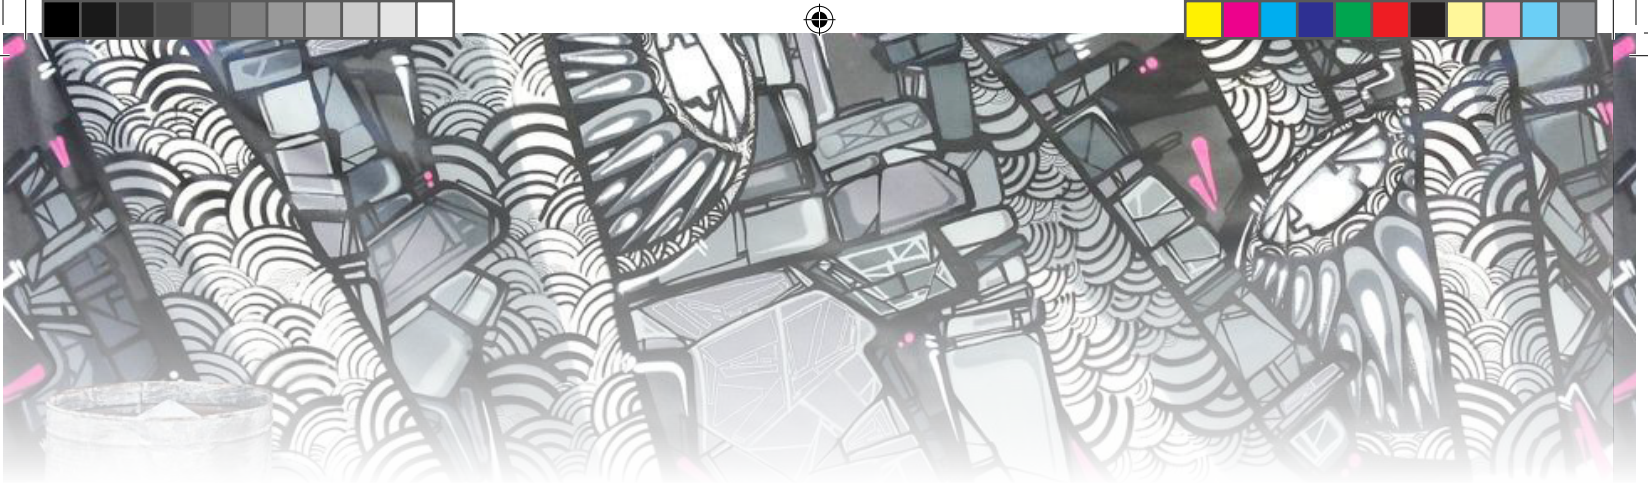

Host organisation: Cemeti Art House, Yogyakarta, 16 September-14 December 2013.

Kieren Sanderson undertook an arts management (visual arts) residency at Cemeti Art 8.5, a transcontinental multi-platform exchange across Australia, India and Indonesia. Further information can be found online: <www.disanaproject.com>.

Tony Yap (VIC)

Host Organisation: Surya Kencana (Agung Gunawan), In the Arts Island Festival and Javanese Dancework, Java, 24 June-24 September 2013.

Tony Yap undertook classes with court dance master Ray Sri Kadarjati Ywandjana of Surya Kencana and investigated the 'raw' bull trance practices of East Java, resulting in two new works – 'Srimpen/Lost' and 'Minotaur Series'. They were performed in Yogyakarta; The Arts Island and Bedog Arts Festivals.
