Wirnalung Ganai – Aboriginal Inclusion Plan

- What does Aboriginal inclusion look like?
- What does Aboriginal inclusion feel like?
- What does Aboriginal inclusion sound like?

These three questions guided the development of the Wirnalung Ganai, the Department's Aboriginal Inclusion Plan 2019-2021 which was launched on 8 August 2019.

The purpose of Wirnalung Ganai is to ensure the Department is:

- a culturally safe place for Aboriginal employees, prospective employees, volunteers, visitors, community partners, learners and families
- an organisation where Aboriginal people, without fear of retribution or questioning, proudly identify as Aboriginal and feel safe to be themselves, and where their expertise is valued and respected
- an organisation committed to Aboriginal self-determination, which is fundamental to better outcomes for Aboriginal learners, and affirms the relationship between government and the Aboriginal community as being one of mutual respect and joint decision-making.

Questions for reflection:

- How do you acknowledge formally recognised Aboriginal Traditional Owners?
- How can you celebrate and commemorate significant dates?
- What might you do to make your classroom a culturally safe place?
