

THE TEACHING YEAR with Belinda Webb

Video Transcript

This transcript is of Edition #11 – What does it mean to lead?

Belinda:

00:01

Hello and welcome to the teaching year. If you haven't already, now might be a nice time to start putting your hand up to help with the different school events that your school may be holding. It also means that amongst your teaching and work, you will have lots of different events to be navigating in addition to this, so ensuring that you're keeping organized with all that's going on throughout your school, as this can be a really busy time. It's also important thinking back, about how you're setting up your students, or these events as there can be lots of changes to the programs that you're running within your classroom. So think about how you're accommodating these particular activities. Take the time to enjoy these events. They can be great opportunities to network with other teachers, or your students and parents. So use these to your advantage as they are often celebrations of achievements of the hard work that you've been putting in with your students. My tip for you is to ensure that you're staying on top of your planning and keeping a diary of events to make sure you're juggling it all together and that you're at the right place at the right time. Have Fun and the joy, these extra activities with your students follow along the online resources, for more support about this busy time of year.