

An invitation to upload your future
in information and communication technology

Tuesday, 9th November 2010
9.30am – 2.30pm

Swinburne University, Hawthorn Campus

Please RSVP by Monday, 1 November 2010
to Bianca van Meeuwen by weblink
<http://www.swinburne.edu.au/ict/events>

This Girls in IT event is a chance for students to get the facts on technology courses and careers from the people studying and working in the field.

The day will include interactive programming and design workshops, inspirational female industry speakers, an opportunity to hear from current female ICT students, plus complimentary lunch and a show bag!

Speakers will include various inspirational female industry representatives.

Free event for girls aged 14 - 19 years. Morning tea and lunch will be provided.

Multi Touch iPod Nano to giveaway to one lucky participant.

Contact name:

School:

Number of students attending:

Contact phone no:

Contact email:

For further information please contact Bianca van Meeuwen by email
BVANMEEUWEN@groupwise.swin.edu.au

With the information and communication technology (ICT) sector expanding rapidly, technology jobs are taking-off in Australia. Over the past two years, the number of ICT positions advertised has increased by 50 per cent. From fashion to finance to pharmaceuticals, there are employers waiting for people with the right technology skills.

Young people say they are confused about what's involved in working in ICT – and that they're not sure about their options once they complete technology-related courses.

This session is designed to help students better understand the diverse careers available to them in ICT, by providing them with the facts from people already working in this innovative and growing field.

For more information on ICT careers go to: www.youthcentral.vic.gov.au/jobs/ict